Using Public Transport in Amsterdam

- OVPay: You can easily check-in and out of public transport with your debit or credit card. Simply hold your card against the card reader on the bus, tram, metro or at the check-in portals at the train station. The system will beep once you have checked in correctly. Be sure to check out with the same card at your destination
- Public transport chip card (OV-Chipkaart): If you're staying in Amsterdam for longer, it's also possible to get a rechargeable 'OV-Chipkaart' to check in and out of public transport. The cards are available at GVB ticket machines, GVB Tickets & Info offices, and select newsstands and supermarkets.
- 24hr/Multi-day ticket: It is also an option to purchase a 24h or multi-day ticket. This kind of ticket provides you with unlimited travel on all public transport routes (excluding trains), regardless of distance, both day and night. The ticket becomes valid the first time you check in. This product is available at the AKO at Schiphol Airport, the GVB app, or at GVB ticket vending machines.
